Dear Mr. Chan,

Outstanding CityU Graduates

I am writing to express my appreciation of your outstanding graduate, Dr. Wing Ki (Josephine) WONG who was recently interviewed for an advertorial about her career accomplishments. The advertorial was published in Ming Pao and Apple Daily on 26 March 2007 and I enclose the original advertorials and some extra-prints for your reference and posting. As you know, Josephine graduated from your school in 1994 and has obtained a degree in Bachelor of Engineering (Hons) in Manufacturing Engineering from City University.

City University is committed to transforming students into professionals, and conducting applied research which has significant impact within the community. In addition to acquiring job and discipline specific skills, City University students are nurtured to develop generic and transferable learning skills, which will prepare them for a lifetime of learning as reflective professional practitioners. Josephine's achievement exemplifies how best the secondary schools and City University cooperate towards achieving a common goal of transforming young people into competent and talented professionals who will serve their communities for the next generation.

Thank you for the crucial part you play in the preparation of our students. I look forward to an even closer partnership with your school as we move towards the implementation of four-year undergraduate degree programmes.

Sincerely yours,
